Cowboys and Indians

The stereotypic views of cowboys and Indians in many Hollywood movies and on television were greatly influenced by images found in the paintings and sculpture of 19th-century American artists. Using library and Internet resources, share selected artworks of Frederic Remington, N. C. Wyeth, and George Catlin. Provide your students with biographical information placing these artists in historical/personal contexts. Discuss techniques the artists used to represent the Old West and aspects of cowboy and-Indian-character and lifestyle. Have students respond by writing brief descriptions of cowboys and-Indians-as portrayed in these artworks and how these images are exaggerated or distorted, based on their knowledge of cowboys and Native Americans gleaned from other sources.
